Dear Ma'am:

Greetings from UPLB DevComSoc!

The UPLB Development Communicators' Society, Inc. is a duly recognized academic organization that has been a venue of harnessing academic excellence, independence of thought, and leadership since 1972. For 48 years, the organization continues to put premium in serving the people, encouraging social change, and promoting the practice of development communication.

In light of our 48 years of service as an academic organization, the UPLB DevComSoc will be organizing an online conference entitled "PANIMULAT: MAGSULAT. MAG-ULAT. MAMULAT!" Formerly known as SULYAP, the organization decided to improve and widen its reach to further uphold and achieve our goals. In this conference, we will be inviting Grade 11 students from any strands and various schools. The event aims to introduce the students to the field of Development Communication and tackle the essence and relevance of development communication in addressing today's societal issues especially those that affect the marginalized sectors.

The said event will include two activities: 1.) an essay-writing competition that will be held on February 23 until March 10, 2021, where prizes will be given to the winning participants; 2.) an online conference on Development Communication as a field of study that will be held on March 17, 2021 at 10 AM until 12 NN via ZOOM. The event will be limited to Grade 11 students of any strand from different schools in the country

As such, UPLB DevComSoc would like to invite you and help us achieve the success of this event by giving us the seal of endorsement of your good office and aid us in disseminating this information to various schools in the region.

Further guidelines for the event are enclosed herewith. For inquiries, you may email us at uplbdevcomsoc.inc@gmail.com

Thank you and we hope for your favorable response. God bless!

Sincerely,
